Ancient Greek's Dependence on the Oracles

Fear and weakness of human beings made communication with the divine Power a necessity of hour. The knowledge for wishes of God acted as a guide for humans. Oracles, uttered by soothsayers were used to decode these wishes in ancient Greek. The most notable soothsayers of that time were used to interpret instances like lightning, thunder, birds' flight, fire, sacrifices or dreams to produce oracles. In certain cases, God did not show any sign while delivered His message by directly talking to the prophet or prophetess who forwarded His message to the petitioners.
