

Passage.

It is no doubt true that we cannot go through life without sorrow. There can be no sunshine without shade. We must not complain that roses have thorns, but rather be grateful that thorns bear flowers. Our existence here is so complex that we must expect much sorrow and much suffering. Many people distress and torment themselves about the mystery of existence. But although a good man may at times be angry with the world, it is certain that no man was ever discontented with the world that did his duty in it. The world is a looking-glass, if you smile, it smiles, if you frown, it frowns back. If you look at it through a red glass, all seems red and rosy: if through a blue, all blue, if through a smoked one, all dull and dingy. Always try then to look at the bright side of things, almost everything in the world has a bright side. There are some persons whose smile, the sound of whose voice, whose very presence seems like a ray of sunshine and brightens a whole room. Greet everybody with a bright smile, kind words and a pleasant welcome. It is not enough to love those who are near and dear to us. We must show that we do so. While, however, we should be grateful, and enjoy to the full the innumerable blessings of life, we cannot expect to have no sorrows or anxieties. Life has been described as a comedy to those who think, and a tragedy to those feel. It is indeed a tragedy at times and a comedy very often, but as a rule; it is what we choose to make it. No evil, said Socrates, can happen to a Goodman, either in Life or Death. -

Precis 1984

Indent the paragraph.

World: A Looking Glass

It is true that sorrows are a part of life. Like every sunshine, it also casts shade. So one must always be grateful for the blessings. As life is complex, it comes with sufferings. Many people worry a lot about this mystery. Only those who play their due part never get dejected. This world is a reflection of one's action, therefore, always try to find the brighter side of it. There are some people who show brighter side of life by expressing their love and showering kindness - which is essential. However, along with finding bright side, one must not expect to never face sorrows and sufferings. This life is a comedy to thinkers whereas a tragedy to those who feel it. So, as philosopher states, life or death both are reflection of one's deed and action.

Punctuation needs improvement. Subject verb disagreement found. Revise use of s/es with verb for singular and plural subject.

Precis words.
±130

Connectivity may also be improved a bit
Idea is ok.