The basic fact about word is that it has various meaning, and it makes words very useful. The word "foot" has different meanings.

Similarly, it is true for every word.

Considering word in different ways, task of speaking clearly and understanding would seem hopeless, if it were not another truth about language. Words can be sensed by context. When humans find word in specific verbal setting, they can easily sense its meaning. If poet says that his verse has feet, he would mean its yard long. The context exclude these maverick senses decisively.
