A trip to Qualla Boundary.

Precis:

We visited a town called Qualla Boundary in Cherokee. The view was breathtaking and the Indian village along with the local show gave a beautiful image of its history. While looking at different antiques in a souvenir store we befriended a guy named George who was a wood cutter by profession but worked all day long in the tourist season. To make money and attract ~~customers~~ tourists, they ~~invented~~ played different games in a huge hall and called it Bingo weekend. Finally we went to a museum where different symbols of Cherokee cosmology were displayed. Kind of arts, like handwoven baskets and carved figurines are displayed.
