Essay

It has been rightly said by Malala Yousafzai that one teacher, one child and one pen can change the world. Teachers are at the cornerstone of the development and prosperity of a nation. They have been rightly called the spiritual parents of students. Therefore, teachers should be respected; because, they impart knowledge and leadership skills in students. Moreover, they create self awareness in students. That's why, teachers play a pivotal role in the rise of a nation. Nations rise with the respect for teachers, as the members of that nations are empathetic and compassionate towards one another. Nations have knowledge about the outside world and are prepared to tackle the modern day challenges.

head~~on~~on. Nations standards of living improved as they are technologically developed and economically prosperous. As a result, the human capital of that nations improved and a stark reduction in crime rate can be witnessed. Therefore, the status of teachers should be improved by giving them due respect and increase their wages and allowances. So, they can give their lives without hardships as they are the assets of nations. Thus, teachers should be respected as they play a pivotal role in the rise and prosperity of any nation. Therefore, steps should be taken to improve their status in society.

The best teacher for humanity is in the form of the last prophet Muhammad (PBUH). He teaches human Quran - the word of God. He teaches them how to live their lives by leading them with his own example. Moreover, he also teaches them how to deal with other people in their day to day lives. As he rightly said that he has been sent as a teacher for humanity. Hence, Holy Prophet (PBUH) is the best teacher for all the people till the Day of Doom.

Teachers should be respected in a society as they impart knowledge to their students. Teachers provides knowledge of past and present. So that they can better equip students to lead their lives. For instance, teachers in all educational institutes teach students about the history, how they got independence, present development in science, like Artificial intelligence, and implications of new development. Thus, teachers provide students with necessary knowledge.

Similarly, teachers instill leadership skills in pupils. As they, students, will become ~~all~~ the leaders in future. Teachers develop leadership skill by means of different activities in the class. For instance, teachers often assign group tasks to students, so that students learn how to collaborate with one another and manage a task. After learning these skills from teachers, students implement them in their professional lives. Hence, proved, the importance of leadership skills to students is undeniable.

Furthermore, teachers

create self awareness and help in intellectual growth of students. Teachers create self awareness by compelling <sup>them</sup> to think about the purpose of their lives and what they want to become in future. For instance, by means of counselling, teachers create self awareness in students. In addition, teachers play an important role in the intellectual growth of students by instilling a problem solving skills in students. Moreover, they let students ponder upon the issues and how to tackle it. Hence, teachers play an important role in the self awareness and intellectual growth of students.

Moreover, the role of teachers in teaching students the difference between right and wrong can not be emphasized more. Students are usually unaware of what is right and wrong. They usually react to situations as per their instinct, which may lead them towards disaster. On the other hand, teachers keep an eye on their actions and guide them in case they are doing something wrong. This way, students realized what is right and wrong. For instance, if a teacher caught a student while stealing something or cheating in exam, he guides him that his actions are wrong and he should mend his ways. Undoubtedly, teachers are at the heart of teachings about right and wrong.

In the preceding paragraphs the importance of teachers has and why they should be respected are discussed. Now, in the following paragraphs how nations rise with respect for teachers will be discussed.

Nations rise with respect for teachers; because, such members of societies, are more empathetic and compassionate towards one another. By giving respect to teachers and act upon their teachings, people behave well with other people. Because they have learned these qualities from their teachers. They help their fellow beings in times of hardships and disasters. For instance, during flood and earth quakes Pakistani came forward to help their brothers in such tough times. Thus, the respect of teachers make members of a nation more compassionate and empathetic towards one another.

After getting training from teachers and treating their teachers with respect, members of a nation are aware how to tackle modern world challenges. Because teachers provide them with knowledge and skills. For instance, after getting lessons from teachers, people know how to avoid Green House gases to tackle the problem of climate change. Thus, respect and training of teachers enable a nation to handle present-day challenges.

Members of a nation have all the pre-requisite knowledge about the outside world. Because teachers prepare students for their future lives. Teachers do not limit the mind of their students to events happening inside their country, but they impart them knowledge about what's happening in other countries and what students can learn from them. For instance, teachers give praise <sup>to</sup> ~~and~~ <sup>about</sup> ~~the~~ <sup>students</sup> ~~about~~ China, US and Japan that how these countries have got success. Moreover, they make them aware about the global conflicts and their implications on them. Thus, teachers impart knowledge to students about outside world so that they can learn from it.

Those nations which give respect to their teachers and facilitate them are technologically developed to improve their standard of living. Because, teachers teach them how to make advancement in science and technology. For instance, Japan and Germany were badly defeated in the world war II. But they invested in their education and teachers. As a result now they are technologically advance and their standard of living is far better than any other countries. Hence, nations become technologically advance by respecting their teachers.

By giving respect and taking training from teachers, nations become economically prosperous to full their need. Because teachers in educational institutions teach students skills which can utilized in their practical lives to earn their livelihood. For instance, teachers in different educational incubation institutes create entrepreneurship capabilities in students. As a result, members of that nations are prosperous and do not rely on others for economic purposes. Undoubtedly, respect of teachers earns a nation economic prosperity to become self-sufficient.

Respect for teachers by a nation results in a steep decline in the crime rate due to grooming of members of a nation by teachers. Teachers teach student the difference between right and wrong. Moreover, teachers play a role in the moral development and character building of a nation. Due to which they avoid the unlawful acts like crime. For instance, student people of a nation who respect teachers and follow them fulfill the need of their lives lawfully not resort to crime. Thus, nations can be protected from crime by respecting and following their teachers.

Improvement in the human capital of a nation can be witnessed by respecting teachers. Because teachers provide members of nation with education, necessary skills etc. Due to which people become a productive members of a nation. In addition, they began to play an instrumental role in the rise of a nation. Thus, improvement in human capital is the direct corollary of respecting teachers.

Nations rise because they are protected from moral degeneracy by respecting their teachers. These nations, follow the teachings of their teachers in day to day life. They do not indulge themselves in any immoral acts because the guidance of their teachers act as a light in the dark. Thus, respect of teachers play an important part in the protection of members of nations from moral degeneracy.

The above paragraphs threw light on how nations rise by respecting their teachers. Now, the follow paragraphs will discuss how the status of teachers can be improved.

The status of teachers can be improved by giving due respect to teachers in society. The importance of teachers in societies is often underestimated. They are conceived as a small cog in a machine without realizing that they are the makers of a nation. Therefore, teachers should be respected <sup>not only</sup> inside the educational institutions but also outside the educational institutions.

Thus, it is the duty of all people to give respect and reverence to teachers.

Moreover, the wages and allowances of teachers should be increased. Because, teachers often lead their lives on meagre salary and allowances which do not fulfill the basic necessities of their lives. The salary and allowances should be rise to an amount on which they can respectably meet the basic requirements of life. Thus, increasing the salary and allowances is the necessary step to improve the status of teachers in a society.

In a nutshell, the respect of teachers in the rise of any nation can not be ~~die~~ denied. Teachers should be respected as they play important role in the rise and prosperity of any nation. Therefore steps should be taken to improve their status in society. Teachers should be respected because they ~~teacher~~ knowledge, leadership skills and manners to students. Those nations that respect teachers rise in a way that they are aware how to tackle challenges. Moreover, they become technologically and economically advance. Equally important, their ~~human~~ crime rates in such nations plummet.

Therefore, ~~students~~ teachers should be given due respect and their salaries should be increased as they are ~~not~~ <sup>imperative</sup> replaceable ~~for~~ <sup>the rise of</sup> any nation.
