

Dynastic Politics in democracy:

After the fall of Soviet Union, there only prevailing political system based on meritocracy, it is called democracy. In democracy focus on quality instead of quantity, so the meritocracy is main component of democracy. But, in most of democratic countries that component superseded by nepo-babies.

The nepo-babies are spouses and family relative of former famous politicians. In other word it is called the dynastic politics. The successor of former big leader are not as competent as their predecessor.

So they harm the democracy by their ruling methods. They give the rise of personalism in the politics. Similarly,

They undermine institutionalism. They also become the authoritarian ruler. But why people elect them? There is no definite answer of this question but one thing is evident that they became famous on the name of their parents and relatives. So at the end, it is even evident that nepo-babies are as dangerous for democracy as populism, authoritarianism and dictatorship.
