

Nazir Hassan: A Cinematic Voice for Palestine

Nizar Hassan was born in Mashhad. He studied anthropology and later worked in cinema. He produced a film independence, in which he expressed his thoughts about Israeli notion of independence wrathfully. As the news of Israel planning to annex more parts of Palestine spread. The writer received an email from Nazir Hassan as he wrote about his new film My Grandfather's Path. They say choose your enemies wisely as you might end up like them from this they wanted to say that if you are triggered by their daily activities in Palestine you would soon become like them and forget about your actual dreams. He is somehow saved from this trap through cinema, art, poetry, fiction and drama as it reminds him about the true meaning of politics. Nazir Hassan's new documentary is a work of art, as it has put Palestine in perspective and is a Palestinian's epic ode to his homeland.
