The Essay

In a small village in Kandahar, Amina's garden was full of her son Ali's laughter as he played on the swing. One day, loud jets of the U.S. Air Force flew over, and bombs fell. In the chaos, Amina lost the hold of Ali. When the dust cleared, she found the swing broken. Nearby, she saw Ali's little shoe full of blood. Days passed, village became quiet now. Every day Amina sits by the swing, holding Ali's shoe. Her tears fall where her happiness once existed. The war on terror had taken her son, leaving only pain for Amina. Undoubtedly, the war on terror hurt millions of mothers like Amina. The war on terror contributed to massive casualties, created sectarian based violence and boosted the emergence of terrorism. It also created chaos in South Asia, spoiled the economies of Middle East, generated humanitarian crisis and resulted the destruction of infrastructure in Middle East. The war on terror also resulted into civil wars. Contrarily, another school of thought, ascribed that cold war harmed the world through alliances, nuclearization and regional wars. In fact, nuclearization has created peace among foes, alliances resulted balance of power. Therefore, the war on terror harmed the world more than cold war.

war on terror contributed to massive casualties. The war on terror in Afghanistan, Iraq, Pakistan and Syria resulted mass casualties. The Global Index Report on Terror examined the loss of lives in war against terror. According to the report 50000 civilians were killed. This is how the war on terror harmed the world more than the cold war. The war against terrorism not only harmed the peace but also resulted the deaths of children, women and old age people. In short, war on terror contributed to mass casualties of humans.

The war on terror also created sectarian based violence in the middle East. The Western nations such as EU and the U.S created proxies and changed regimes in Iraq. The alignment with Shia based rulers in Iraq resulted sectarian violence among the two sects of Islam. Reuters investigated the issue of sectarian violence. According to the Reuters resistance groups of Sunnis emerged in Iraq which boosted the violence. This is how war on terror harmed the world. Therefore, the war on terror boosted sectarian violence in middle East.

Similarly, war on terror boosted the emergence of terrorism in the world. The U.S with NATO attacked Afghanistan, Iraq, Somalia and Syria. The alliance aimed to oppress the only militant group known Al-Qaeda. The intention of alliance did not provide success. Later, emerged Boko Haram in Somalia, ISIS in middle East and TTP in Pakistan. The new terrorist groups killed millions of civilians. This was the only failure of 9/11 operation which harmed the world. In nutshell, the war on terror boasted the emergence of terrorism which further harmed the world.

The war on terror also created chaos in South Asia. The participation of Pakistan in the war against terror created enormous chaos in South Asia. How the Global Index on Terror 2023 investigated the impacts of 9/11 on South Asia. The (GIRT) described that only 8000,0 civilians lost their lives due to 9/11. Anatol Lieven, an author of "Pakistan: A Hard Country" explored the chaos generated by 9/11. This is how the war on terror spoiled every region of the world. Last but not the least, the war on terror created chaos in South Asia.

Additionally, war on terror spoiled the economies in Middle East. The Middle Eastern nations such as Iran with GCC used to trade. Iran enormously benefited from the Arab markets. The war on terror resulted sectarian conflict in Middle East. The regional powers such as Iran and KSA jumped into the issue to protect their respective sects. According to Middle East Economic Survey 2023, the KSA-Iran economic ties vanished due to sectarian divide. The only factor was 9/11 which impacted the economies of Middle East. Therefore, war on terror impacted the economies of Middle East.

War on terror generated humanitarian crisis. The operations of the U.S Air Force, NATO raids and ground invasions impacted the lives of civilians. Refugees fled to Pakistan, and Iran from Afghanistan. The same happened in Iraq, Syria and Somalia. The refugees suffered from health issues, food insecurity and violence. According to UNHCR Report, refugees in Pakistan's Gory Jungle Refugee Camp Baluchistan and Syrian refugees near Turkey borders suffered notoriously. This is how 9/11 vanished the comforts of civilians. In short, 9/11 generated enormous humanitarian crisis.

The war on terror also resulted the destruction of infrastructure in Middle East. In general the 9/11 vanished the infrastructure of Afghanistan and Pakistan. In particular sense, the 9/11 spoiled the entire infrastructure of Iraq and Syria. According to Al-Jazeera the roads, energy plants, trade markets, key ports of Iraq and Syria vanished during the wars. Syrian Capital Damascus was fully vanished due to suicide cars, drone strikes so on and so forth. This is the clear impacts of 9/11. Therefore, the war on terror vanished the infrastructure of the middle East.

Moreover, the war on terror boosted civil war. The Syrian Civil war was started because of the 9/11. The struggle for installing pro-west regime in Syria resulted civil war. According to The New York Times millions of civilians lost their lives due to the civil war. The war on terror resulted division among public in Syria. Thus, 9/11 boosted the civil war in Syria.

The other school of thought ascribed that cold war harmed the world more than the war on terror. According to the other school of thought cold war resulted into nuclear era. The nuclearization of the world harmed the peace of the world. New states emerged such as P.S, India, Pakistan. The nuclearization of the world had brought the nations into nuclear war (Cuban Missile Crisis). Therefore, the cold war posed threats to the existence of life on the earth.

Cold war boosted the concept of alliances. Nations joined economic and military alliances such as NATO and Warsaw Pact which resulted wars in Afghanistan, Vietnam and Korea. Consequently, millions of civilians died. This was the cold war to harm the world. Therefore, cold war pushed the nations into alliances which resulted into wars.

Cold war resulted regional wars. Wars fought through proxies in the regions during the cold war. The regional wars resulted enormous casualties. This is how cold war harmed the peace in the world.

In short, Cold war resulted into regional wars.

In reality, all wars have impacted the peace and existence of lives in the world. The nuclearization of the world has been considered to be peaceful era. According to realist scholar of IR, J. John Meaherskemir nuclear warheads are creating ~~detera~~ deterrence among foes. This means since the start of nuclearization era no nation has used nuclear bombs. The cold war was peaceful era although, it did not harmed the world like the war on terror. Thus, nuclearization of the world maintained peace among enemies.

Alliances among the nations created balance of power. Alliances such as NATO created tremendous balance of power. Currently, nation states seek the assistance of alliances to combat economic and security issues. The alliances in the cold era did not harm the world like 9/11. Thus, alliances created balance of power among nations.

Regional wars were produced by non-state actors. In the Cold war era no non-state actor existed. The war on terror resulted numerous non-state actors which resulted regional wars. The non-state actors soon became into existence after the 9/11. Thus, regional wars are the resulted of 9/11.

To sum up the entire discussion, the war on terror notoriously harmed the world. Wars are like storms when come on the planet destroy the existence of life. The cold war era has been considered one of the peaceful era although limited conflicts recorded. The war on terror vanished economies, countries and pushed the world into dark age. Individuals of numerous nations are still suffering from the impacts of war on terror. The war against terrorism created new world order where violence on the name of sect become common. The cold war era never resulted into sect based violence. Moreover, wars are the most dangerous aspects. The international community must join efforts to reduce the existing wars of the world which produced since the 9/11. Thus, the war on terror harmed the world more than cold war.
