

Date:

Day:

A Trip to Cherokee

The author was confused of choosing a charming foreign trip. John suggested him a trip to Cherokee and he agreed. They visited a beautiful mountainous town called Qualla Boundary where a village reflected back the Cherokee's traditional significance of 18th century. They succeeded to find some desired shops where they met with a well English speaking man, George, who invited them for lunch. After listening to George's life story, they concluded that Cherokee did not depend only on trade while Bingo weekend, when people used to play different games, was another way of income. Lastly, they visited a museum that was showing Cherokee's ~~tradition~~ art and culture. ^{After} Going back to home, author decided to go for another foreign trip.

Words in Precise = 119