

In the perception of common men, the laws and the liberty of man are contradictory to each other. It is generally believed that contradictory to each other. Seemingly, it is true. Every law imposes some restrictions on citizens. If the number of laws in a country increases, the restrictions ~~may also increase~~ also increase. The liberty of man is compromised under unnecessary laws. On the other hand, limited laws provide more liberty to general masses.
