A Trip to Cherokee

The author was confused ^{while} choosing a charming foreign trip. John suggested him a trip to Cherokee and he agreed. They visited a beautiful ^{mountainous} town called Qualla Boundary where a village reflected ~~back~~ the Cherokee's traditional significance of 18th century. They succeeded ^{in finding} to find some desired shops where they met with a ~~well~~ English speaking ~~man~~, George, who invited them for lunch. After listening to George's life story, they concluded that Cherokee did not depend only on trade while Bingo weekend, ^{where} when people used to play different games, was another way of income. Lastly, they visited a museum that was showing Cherokee's ~~tradition~~ ^{after} and culture. ^{looked forward} Going back ~~to~~ home, author decided to go for another foreign trip.
