

Women face on the losing side in professional life

In 21st century there are many significant advancements occur to remove the gender inequalities. Unfortunately women still face barriers in professional life. Some people have conservative minds who think that women are born to ~~remain in the house~~ stay at home. This is the biggest problem that women face. Other problems that they face are gender pay gap, sexual harassment at workplaces, discrimination, political barriers and no training systems or programs are available for women who help them in understanding the administrative system. Education is a basic need for everyone but women are still negligible ~~in developing countries~~. ~~educated women~~ It is very important for a woman to be educated in this developing country.

Women want to stand on her own foot. They do not want to be dependent on anyone else. but gender inequalities do not allow them to do so. However,

Government should try to remove the gender gap by establishing the policies, programs and training systems. especially in professional life. Education should be compulsory for both men and women.

Government should provide equal rights in political departments. Not only government but also citizens understand the importance of working lady by removing the old concepts. Government and citizens both ^{should} provide such platform ^{or environment} where women work without inequalities which help them for making a progressive country.
