

It is not only the fine feathers that make fine birds.

Outline:

1. Introduction:

Nations, people and societies progress by doing hardwork not relying on delicate intentions only. It is, the not only the inner qualities that makes one's to achieve high success but also the qualities that one's acquire after doing hardwork.

2. Nations who achieve success upto the limits of sky:

- 2.1 Singapore: transformed itself from a poor post colonial state to a financial hub
- 2.2 China lifted hundred of millions out of poverty
- 2.3 Germany rebuilt from World War II
- 2.4 Taiwan: transformed from an agricultural economy into high-tech
- 2.5 Finland achieved top ranked education system through teacher training

3. People who progressed not only on the base of Inner Qualities:

3.1 Nelson Mandela overcame imprisonment to become president

3.2 Angela Merkel: rose from a humble background to become a Chancellor

3.3 J.K. Rowling went from struggling mother to best selling author

3.4 Thomas Edison developed ground breaking innovations through relentless experimentation

3.5 Ashad Madani: from a humble background to win oscar olympic award

4. Societies which not only rely on Fine tactics but also Hardwork to achieve success:

4.1 Japanese society known for its culture of discipline, and dedication

4.2 South Korean society emphasizes education and hard work

4.3 Native American tribes:

revitalizes languages and economic self-sufficiency

4.4 Rwandan society rebuilt from genocide

4.5 Iceland society rebuilt after financial crisis

5. Conclusion:

Nations, people and societies achieve success not only on the base of inner qualities but also the hardware.

It is not only the fine feet these that make fine birds. This phrase is reflected through the nations, people and societies who have achieved success. These nations rely not only on the inherent qualities but also worked hard to touch the limits of sky. This is also evident in the biographies of successful persons. Further, society, as a concept of individuals are the result of their perseverance. Among the nations, Singapore, China, Germany and Taiwan are remembered because of the milestones they have achieved.
Like Germany had developed itself from the ruins of World War II.
Further, China has lifted poor people out of poverty. Same is the case with people. Repeated failure of experiments conducted by Thomas Edison resulted in the invention of bulb. Further, Arshad Nadeem presents a similar picture. Likewise societies of Japanese, South Korean and Rwandan. These societies have rescued themselves from their presenting examples of hardships.