

Human beings are afraid of death just as children feel afraid of darkness. The fear of darkness of kids increased by the stories of the heard ghosts and thieves. In the same way, the fear of human being is increased by the stories which they heard about the agony of dying man. If a human being regards death as a kind of punishment for his sins he has committed and if he looks upon death as a means of making an entry into another world, he is certainly taking a religious and sacred view of death. But if a human being looks upon death as a law of nature and then feels afraid of it, his attitude is of cowardice. However, even in religious meditations about death there is sometimes a mixture of folly and superstition. Monks have written books in which they have described the painful experiences which they underwent by inflicting physical tortures upon themselves as a form of self-purification. Thus, one may think that the pains of death must be indescribably agonizing. Such books and such thoughts increase a man's fear of death. Seneca, the Roman Philosopher is of the view that the circumstances and ceremonies of death frighten people more than death itself would do. A dyeing man is heard uttering groans; his body is seen undergoing convulsions; his face appears to be absolutely bloodless and pale; at his death his friends begin to weep and his relations put on mourning clothes; various rituals are performed. All such facts make death appear more horrible than it would be otherwise.

Questions: 1. What is the difference between human beings' fear of death and children's fear of darkness?

2. What is a religious and sacred view of death?

3. What are the painful experiences described by the Monks in their books?

4. What are the views of Seneca about death?

5. What are the facts that make death appear more horrible than it would be otherwise?

to go

Q. 1

There is no difference between human's fear of death and children's fear of darkness as both are intellectual through stories. One through fear of death of ghosts while other from suffering through

Q. 2

The religious and sacred view of death is a belief of a person regarding death. Some consider it as the ~~door~~ reward of their worldly sins which he committed, which some think it is the gateway to another. But actually it is the process of law of nature.

Q. 3

The painful ~~expos~~ experiences describe by monks in their books in the torturing of their bodies is regarded as self-purification of their religious actual part.

Q#4

General funeral friends memory appearance to actually describe the views of in which relative and themselves in weeping and beating and the ~~body~~ death body gets pale as blood of clothing.

Q#5:

The facts that would be made death more horrible than it are following.

- ⇒ The myths of people regarding death suffering.
- ⇒ The loud and forcefully weeping of the people in funeral.
- ⇒ The tearing of clothes and beating themselves in mourning of death body.
- ⇒ The appearance of death body.

All such facts would make death appear more horrible than it.