Human beings communicate and receive guidance from the divine through multiple different channels. This desire was created in the face of uncertainties and meekness of human life. So, humans resorted to studying and understanding signs, symbols, dreams and hand patterns to receive divine guidance. Gods also communicated with believers through intermediaries. The pious people of God were elevated to divinity and the divine message was delivered to be passed on to the practitioners. The divine words were translated to understand God's wishes. The greek oracles used to tell future through such practices, and communicating and receiving guidance was a popular practice among the greeks.
