I think modern educational theorists ...
..... affection and tact.

Title: How children should be dealt?

Many educational theorists do not give importance to spending time with children. Children show obedience towards person who shows affection to them. It is unfair to treat children as a social endeavour and power impulses. The desirable pleasure is when you feel spontaneous happiness with children. Teacher interfere with children's freedom without damaging psychological health. Over burdened teachers cannot instinctively live children, they treat them as compulsion. Educationist spend few time with children. Strict discipline avoids fatigue. Necessary friendliness is important but rules should be established for naughty children. Being only wise is an alternative for affection and tact.
