

- (Q.2) -

As an essential element of the ideology of Pakistan, what role did Two Nation Theory play in the formulation and strengthening of ideology?

- (Answer) -

Introduction:

Essential and most important element of the ideology of Pakistan is the religion Islam.

On the basis of Islam, the two nation theory laid its foundation, that later on served as basis of ideology of Pakistan - Two nation theory played important role in formulation and strengthening of ideology of Pakistan.

The basic idea for separate homeland was formed on the basis of separate identity of Hindus and Muslims. It was further strengthened ~~by~~ under the British rule - From invasion of United India to separation of India

The idea of two nation theory was more strengthened due to discriminations of Hindus and Buddhists combined.

Background

Hindus and Muslims were the major nations in India before partition. Despite living together for more than thousand years both nations never mixed up completely. They adopted some rituals but language, religion, customs, traditions, beliefs, social life, political views, educational perspective all were poles apart. Two nations always existed in united India but the need of separate land was realized after the 1857 war of Independence.

Ideology of Pakistan

"Ideology is basically science of ideas and their origin" according to De Lusigny.

Ideology of Pakistan as mentioned by its founding father Muhammad Ali Jinnah and Allama Muhammad Iqbal, ideology

Pakistan is ideology of Islam.

In united India muslims always kept their individual identity. Hindus and Muslims were most prevalent nations in sub-continent.

After war of Independence, the need of separate homeland where Islam can be freely practiced was felt strongly. This was because of discrimination by Britishers, as they always assumed Muslims as sole warriors of war.

Realization by the founding fathers of Pakistan lead to the creation of Pakistan on the basis of two nation theory and ideology of Islam.

Role of Two Nation Theory in formulation of ideology of Pakistan

Ideology is formulated by ideas. Ideology of Pakistan was based on the base idea that Hindu and Muslims were not only two communities in subcontinent in fact two nations.

Separate

Separate identity

Muslims despite being less in population than Hindus always kept their separate identity.

"Muslims and Hindus despite living together for more than 1000 years, could have separate identity."

(Allama Muhammad Iqbal)

Both religions ~~but~~ were different from each other in every aspect of life, so were Hindus and Muslims - Even <sup>way of</sup> eating, praying, marriages, greetings were different from each other. Two nations always poked its eye from the idea of united India.

But realization of two nation theory by Muslim leaders ~~to~~ lead to the strong formulation of ideology of Pakistan on the basis of two nation theory.

Coexistence

Hindus and Muslims coexisted in subcontinent for many thousand years - However, they were still more passionate about being called as Hindu or Muslim rather than Indian. Under British rule Muslim leaders realized that the coexistence was not even the option left - Muslims wanted to live life according to Islamic code - but however, Hindus were inclined more on getting ruling of India ~~because they~~ on the basis of their choices -

"Islam not the religion, but a complete code of life"

(M. Ali Jinnah)

Under the Hindu policies it was impossible for Muslims to even practice Islam as a religion. This difference formulated two nation theory as a crucial element of ideology of Pakistan -

Role of two nation theory in strengthening of the ideology of Pakistan:

Two nation theory was the basic formulation of the ideology of Pakistan. Moreover, the events of and efforts by Hindus to sabotage the Muslim identity further strengthened the ideology of Pakistan, the two nation theory.

Convincing Britishers against Muslims

After the war of Independence, 1857, the Hindus would do every effort to convince Britishers that Muslims were originally the main culprits for inciting this war against them. Muslims were rebellious and took equal part in war like Hindus. However, Britishers were somehow convinced that Muslims were main culprits. Because of this Muslims faced extreme wrath of Britishers and discriminations. This effected Muslims socially, economically and politically, resulting in lower position of Muslims in sub-continent.

Urdu-Hindi controversy

Under the Mughal dynasty, Urdu was official language. However, after their decline Hindus made every effort to sabotage the language of Muslims. For muslims Urdu was <sup>not only</sup> their way of communication but also held the cultural values. This effort by Hindus further clarified their intentions of destruction of Muslims <sup>along with</sup> and their culture, separate identity - Urdu - Hindi controversy strengthened the ideology of partition, the two nations theory.

"Hindus and Muslims are not two communities but separate nations -" (Iqbal).

Shuddhi event:

Shuddhi <sup>was</sup> movement by Hindus to convert the non-Hindu Indians to Hindus. Hindus did <sup>every</sup> effort to do this. This attempt of Hindus pinched Muslims to the core. Muslims were patriotic before, however these efforts served as stone engraving on Muslims that they need separate homeland for to safeguard their religious identities. Events like Shuddhi further strengthened the ideology of Pakistan whose basis were <sup>separate</sup> religious identity.

Hindu rule through elections

Founding fathers of Pakistan, at start were in favour of removal of ~~old~~ British colonialism and united India. ~~But~~ Although, they thought the coexistence was still an option. However, Hindu rule under Congress <sup>twice</sup> through elections in India in 1937 and 1945 ~~fliped~~ changed their perspectives. Hindus did every effort to demoralize Muslims. They even downed Muslims economically through their policies.

For example ~~less~~ removal from jobs, no new jobs, education system problematic for Muslim Indians. Actions like these under Hindu rule realized Muslim how Hindus will take over after British rule ends. And will make life of Muslims hell. This strengthened the the two nation theory - That is essential element of the ideology of Pakistan.

Annulment of partition of Bengal

Muslims through their efforts convinced the viceroy in 1905 to divide the Bengal into East Bengal and West Bengal.

But However, Hindu made every effort and at the end <sup>annuled</sup> ~~made~~ to the partition of Bengal in 1911 - Muslims were already suffering that was the reason they put efforts in partition of Bengal -

However, annulment of Bengal and Hindu efforts for it strengthened the views of Muslim that two nation theory exists - Moreover, this theory lead to the partition of subcontinent and independence of Pakistan -

Conclusion:

Ideology of Pakistan has an essential element of two nation theory. This theory was formulated and strengthened due to negative impact of Hindu policies and efforts on Muslims. Muslims were convinced that Hindu and Muslims are not two communities coexisting infact two nations - This led the basis of ideology of Pakistan.

- (Q.2) -

What lessons can be learned from the downfall of Muslim rule in the subcontinent for understanding the dynamics of power and governance in the history

- (Answer) -

Introduction

Muslims long rule in sub-continent was officially overthrown after by the British takeover after war of Independence in 1857. Muslims when started to rule were morally, economically, socially, administratively, as mediators were very strong - Also, they were always one step ahead from other people. As the world was continuously expanding not only population wise but also in other areas. When Muslims did not realize the needs of governance and power dynamics of that time this failure lead to downfall of Muslim rule in subcontinent.

Lessons learned . . .

Strong military

In 18th century, world use to hold the strong hold on any place with their strong military. Expansionism and its resistance and administration was further realized achievable only with strong military. Unlike modern warfare they were required large trained men force. As the wars were fought on grounds, face to face. For defence strong military was need and Muslims lacked it. This lead to attacks from Nader Shah and other Marathas and Sikhs.

Strong naval forces

As the world was growing technologically they were also using sea routes for equipping strong navy and naval ships was essential requirement for of that time. Muslim rulers, Mughals did not invest and build any naval ships or naval forces. Britishers used sea for trade route and eventually occupied it.

Corrupt practices

Muslims of sub-continent were ruled by Mughals - The hierarchical throne lead them to corrupt practices - and corrupt practices like lack of investments for socio-economic growth - but they had budget for building enormous buildings of bricks - These practices lead to the break in the human development and No capable leaders or admins were there that eventually led to downfall

Need for economic policies

Taking over of thrown by <sup>sm</sup> when father died, kingship lead to the case of gaining th. power - This lead to ~~forgotten~~ leaders that were not capable of running good economies. For example removal of tax from non-muslims, independence declaration by Decan, Bengal lead to less money. However, effective policies were not implemented by the hierachial leaders of Muslim rule in subcontinent - Economy was needed to strengthen the governance and stay in power dynamics. This weakness was another nail on the wall of the downfall of Muslim rule in subcontinent.

Internal conflicts confrontation

If a country is weak

"Weak immune system attracts more diseases."

If a state is already facing internal conflicts, external threats will eventually increase - Muslim rule in ~~subcontinent~~ was facing different sectarian issues, succession issues that leads to more internal threats. To gain power in the region and good governance in <sup>the</sup> history addressing internal conflicts was necessary, but inability of Muslim leaders lead to downfall of Muslim rule in the subcontinent.

Strong administrative control:-

Following Rather ~~↑ Expansion~~ & "expand or Expire" theory Muslims of subcontinent did not realize the importance of strong administrative control. Lack of administration lead to further weakening of Mughal monarch in the sub-continent - Mughals held from <sup>Bengal</sup> Punjab to Afghanistan, Sindh to Kashmir in terms of territorial area.

However, to lead and run this territory required large number of efficient administrators - This led to the reason of anarchy, capture of land by others in sub-continent -

This weakened Muslim rule and eventually downfall of rule in subcontinent.

Conclusion

Muslims ruled in the sub-continent for the very extended period in the history - however, requirement of strong internal matters including defence, economy, social life, human development and administration weakened their rule with the passage of time. This lead to the eventually downfall as Muslims lacked the basic understanding of power dynamics and governance requirements in history.
