Common people think that the law of a country and freedom of an individual are opposed to each other. Apparently, this does not seem wrong. Every law places some kind of restrictions on the citizens. If the number of laws in a country are more then the collective restrictions would be more as well. Because of more restrictions, freedom of an individual is compromised under the weight of those laws. In contrast, if the number of laws are less, the circle of individual freedom is widened.

A quacker, was one day, walking on country road. He was suddenly met by a highway-man, pointing a pistol. The man exclaimed, "Your money or your life, my friend?" Said the cracker, "I cannot deliver my money, for I should be helping thee in evil-doing, however, exchange is lawful and I will give thee my purse for the pistol." The robbers agreed on receiving the purse. The quacker, at once held the pistol at the robber's head and said, "Now friend! My purse back! or the weapon may go off fire. Said the robber, "There is no powder in the pistol."
