Teachers should be ^(Title with Mark) child-centered

According to the writer, modern educational theorists believed in the complete freedom of children without interference. Those who consider children as a field will agree to them. However, those who want to enjoy the company of children without any purpose will often need to intervene children's freedom but when it is necessary, they do so without causing psychological harm to them. Unluckily, the teachers spend only two hours with children while rest of the day they are away from them. Due to this reason, the youth is tiring which produces irritation but when they feel that they are liked by teachers then they follow even strict rules. (CSS-2019)
