There is a need to curtail such forces, so We need lot of expression socio-economic improvemento humanity. Women encounter domestic estrictions while joining the professional life after graduation. In Patient, it is my common that women are not allowed to work after being graduated. It is considered that, son after the Ingraduation it has become a time for a woman to marry. Moreover, in-laws are also reludant bowards women jobs after marriage. Resultantly, many graduated women fail to officially start their professional coreer. Let us take an example & female doctors in Pakistan. Women outnumber men with 80% prollment in medical colleges. Despite this, according to a study, 50% women doctors after graduation either do not practice or left the pb within a short period (Mr Raza, Unveiling the Obstacles Encountered by Female Doctors, 2023). Hence, it is difficult for women to start their professional career due to restrictions from family. Another obstade women face while starting pofessional life is gender-based distimination in recruitment process. Men are considered as better candidates as compared to women. Male andidates are less likely to quit jobs or request leaves; female con employees are likely to quit job and request for maternity leaves. The employers take this factor to into account, as leaving job or too much leaves of employees have regetive effects on the productivity of the from. That is Plz avoid writing gosspongs style female candidates. According to a study, male and female managers are twice as likely to hire a male candiable than female candidate (vivoe com, Gender

Women remain on loosing side in professional life primarily due to genderwage gap. Works can less than their malle countries This leaves women finemually in miserable situation. In the past women were not even paid for their hard work. Although they get wages for their today, work, there wages are still exploitative. Moreover, after retirement they get very They are not entitled to pensionery benefits Heir life. Gender-wage gyp is prevalent globally; however, it is much higher in third world countries. Gendel-wage gap for Pakistan is estimated to be 34% much higher than global average 20%. (Azhar Igbal, Determinents of the Gender Wage Gap in Pakistan, 2024). Thus, female employees do not earn equal to their male counterpart Career breaks curtain the chances of promotion in females professional life. Career breaks are indispersible for to their societal

They are compelled to take breaks for marraige, births of child, and responsblety of caring elders: On the other hand, male employees continue their jobs without any break and become suitable for promotion. A Moreover, after the breaks, women employees find entrenely difficult to get on the track scrulling in Instration and mental hearth issues. Thus, taking career breaks and leaves proves to be a great setback in professional life. Northace harssment is the Is the most prevelant biggest challenge that when face life. Use of abusin language, condemning behavior, and sexual abuse from co-workers and senior officers cause a great misery to female employees. Nomen marassed at workplace, are either genein silent due to fear of loving job or call for justice. Unprimately the acrossed are pot brought to justice most of the time. In sub situation, allala tend to quit the job. According to a Survey, 93% of somen at and private sector face sexual harassment (Saira Samo, Confronting Workforce Harassment, November 2023). Tip shows that house that workplace impede the progress of women in professional This indicates that Maintaining work-life balance remains challenging for female workers disturbing their mental health status. At work they are obliged to work for long and inflexible hours without any concession. At the same time, they have to perform the household responsibilities. Work-life imbalance, despite bad working results in increased rok mental nealth problems such as anxiety, depression mood disturbance and interpers conflicts. Marry studies but revaled that work-life imbalance leads to higher risks of mental her illness. The matter I the fact is that women struggler Day:_ to balgace their work and life responsibilities have no time for them to maintain Heir mental realth. housenest Usaira Samo, Confronting Workfor Despite all the given arguments, there is an opposite argument that women are being incentivized in professional realing, are chief incentive among others is availably of work-from-home jobs. After COVID-19 pandemic, the trend of work-from-home jobs has risen. It is argued that it relps the working women to maintain work life balance as there is a lot of margin to marage the work and life responsibilities in flexible times: Moreover, the time which was previously wasted in traveling to workplace can be used to relax and mintain mental health states writing in passive pardenia, women workers like to prefer work from home jobs. Briefly, apportunities are being realed for female professionals including the incentive of working from home.

	Promulgation of Anti-Harassment laws from the government is well a great manife to make the security of women and their dignity to with place. Almost every government has passed laws to curb the workplan harassment. These laws empower the women to more forward in profesional life without the fear of being harassed. These laws has build confidence among working women. In Pakistan, Protestion against Harassment of Womenst at the Workplace Act 2010 provides legal protection to women against harassment at the sorkplace, and reforms the ensting legislation regarding women's right to work in Pakistan. Hence, women have goten legal protection and government aciding against workplace represent given to Another incentive tests for women is setting of quotes in all professional Institutes to ensure waren inclusions. It is a major breakthrough which helps women to display their capabilities in all those fields. Let's take an enample of political profession. In politices, the participation and representation of women is ensured by preserving g quotas for tenale politicians in legislature bodies. for prample, in National Assembly of Pakitan 60 out 336 selets are allocated to women. Similarly, in Senate 18 out of 96 sents is constitutional quota the female politicians. This quota guarantee the ovomen depresentation in legislation process. In sym, allocation & quotes is proved to be a great incentive in professional life rellatory or boined pol lide Those who favor the argument that women are not on losing side in professional life bother support their argument by daying that is compared to the past, women participation in labour force has increased worldwide. After the industrial revolution, women labour force participation has risen. Governments and corporate aganizations have taken practical measures to enhance the rate of women labour force pathopation. The women's labour force participation is increasing in Pakistan as well. The development road map "Vision 2025" sets an ambibilistarget of an increase in labor force participation 45 pc by 2025 much higher than current level of 25pc in brief, the rise in labor force participation Work on punctuation also plz great success. Despite all the mentioned incentives, women still lag behind in professional advancements The opportunity of working from home instead of improving work-life balance, further exacerbates the work-life imbalance resulting in poor mental health In case of work-from-home jobs, it is challenging to keep work life separate from personal life. Moreover, the pressure remains always high one as the Do not start a sentence with due mental issues are increased such as burnout, anxiety, deprension, and mental illness.

In sich sibution, achieving progress and success in professional life conging challerging Varie the entrenched societal nor impede the professional trajectory women employees. Anti-hargsment laws fail to guarantee the women protection from harasment due to leak of awareness strick promulgation. Despite against harassment, There is no cases Primarily, it owing to lack of awareness of women regarding these laws. Due to poor education, women are unable to assen rights and duties. Mereover, the laws are not smithy implemented curb the workplace boosment - Consequently women tremain being victimized in professional workple life According to a rea survey, 93% of women in public private sector face sexual harassment (Saira Bano, Confronting Werforce Harassment Date: . November 2023). This shows that the anti-harassment laws remain unable to protect women from harassment at workplace Allocation of quotas for women, at although a step in right direction, to to so is insufficient to ensure women represention and participation. Especially, in technology sector, where the margin of earning and promotion, at is higher, women lag behind men. Moreover the allocated seats are not used to inentialize the professional career of women who is the most deserving. Instead, the quata seets are filled with manusen in the relative on friend circle ob higher officials. Thus, the quota system is an inadequate measure to incentione foster the professional advancement of women. Although women labour fice participation has increased, they remain underrepresented at senior managerial posts. Women would Serve at lower levels only. In Pakistan, most of the women labour works in an informal sector such as agriculture and home servicing. This undermines their right to work in an fostering environment. They are hardly promoted or given rewards for their dedicated work. Some other pervasive hurdles also impede the promotion of women employees at higher posts. Resultantly, there is hardly any lady represents the higher office. According to the Global Greder Gap Index, women make up only 6pc of Senior officials and senior managers in Pakistan (Samia Liaquet A Javing France, July 2024), Hence, the underropresentation of women at higher posts indicate the impediments women face in their professional carrier In a putshell, lemale workers face a lot of obstacles which impede their professional success leaving them on losing side. They encounter restrictions from family, gender base discrimination in recruiment and wages payxale, harassment at workplace, and uneven playing field. All these factors, contribute to their pool performance and dunted progress. Some measures have been taken to improve the These include in professional life. They include working from home. opportunity, availability of daycase for children; setting quotes, and ensuring protection against haracment: These steps are insufficient to mentivize female employees in professional life. Their inadequacy is manifested in their failure to improve women status in professional life. Women are still encountering a plethera of dallenges in naintaining worklife balance, breaking the Sociated norms associated with women sole, and proketing Hemselves against harassment. The latest neeting of World Economic Forum divert the attention fowards orderrepresentation I women at higher jobs and technology sector. Being human creature, both men and women have equal human rights. Both enjoyed to equal basic huma rights such as right to life, property work, and movement. Thus it is necessary to give equal opportunities and incentives to women in professional life. As Allah sup in Holy Quian; "Never will 3 allow to be lost the work of [ang] worker agnong you, whether male or female, you are one another." (03:195)
