

The role of opposition in Pakistan and the mode of their protest.

Unfortunately, the clouds of poor ^{Political} climate are hovering over Pakistan from last few months. This is because the opposition parties are making immense protests for numerous demands such as stolen mandate, seats in National assembly and above all, to release a political leader who is behind the bars. These protests, marches and social assemblies are raising plethora of problems for the public. In the days to come, SCO meeting is going to be held in Pakistan in which number of world foreign ministers and leaders will participate, viewing that, the ideas of protest are not suitable to reflect the disorganized political system of the country. As seen in western democracies, the mode of protest is often peaceful and the protestors get their demands recorded within the limits of morality and social order. But the case of Pakistan is totally different from the former. So it can be vividly remarked that opposition should play a supportive role to uphold the political system of the country rather than backsliding it.
