

Date: _____

Day: _____

A society that has more justice is a society that needs less charity

Outline

1) Introduction

Thesis Statement

A society built on justice, where individuals have equitable access to resources, opportunities and rights, will require less charity, as systematic fairness reduces the need for compensatory aid

2) Justice as a foundation for reducing inequality

(2a) Addressing root causes of poverty reduces inequality

i. Economic justice leads to reduce poverty gap

Date: _____

Day: _____

ii- Equitable access to quality education helps individuals improve their lives

(2b) Legal & social justice eradicates inequality

i- Equal access to justice ensures marginalized groups are not unfairly treated in courts.

ii- Combating discrimination based on race, gender create fairer society

3/ How justice reduces dependency on charity

(3a) Creating Economic stability in society

i- Ensuring fair wages for all workers reduces need for food banks and shelter

Date: _____

Day: _____

- ii. Strong welfare system address needs of citizens immediately reducing dependency on charity

(3b) Diminishing charity Band-Aid approach

- i. Charity provides temporary relief, justice eliminates structural issues leading to poverty

- ii. Justice based policies empower individuals reducing dependency

4/ Societies that prioritize charity over justice perpetuate inequality

(4a) Charity can be inefficient and unequally distributed

- i- Charities are often selective creating a gap in assistance

- ii- Charities are short term fix

Date: _____

Day: _____

5/ Case Studies of societies with more justice and less charity

i- Sweden is a comprehensive welfare state.

ii- Cuba provides free healthcare to all citizens reducing dependency on medical charities.

iii- Norway's tax policies ensure wealth distribution, providing security to citizens.

6/ Conclusion