

2. Why do the teachers do this?
3. What is the form of a tutorial?
4. What do the students gain by tutorial work?

COMPREHENSION EXERCISE 5

Q: Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

"Religion is the opium of the people" is an oft-quoted saying of Karl Marx. The function of opium as is well-known is sedative. It assuages pain, lessens irritation and intoxicates. Thus, what Marx apparently meant when he described religion as "opium" was that religion eased physical and mental sufferings of this life by promising greater prosperity and happiness in the next world. He claimed that religion helps in soothing the irritation which inevitably exists between the opposing classes: it teaches the poor the blessings of ends the greatest support to the existing economic order with its cardinal feature, the exploitation of masses. In this view of history there can obviously be no place for a Transcendental Being. This was also supposed to be a scientific view of the nature of man. His social, political and even moral life was said to be governed by the manner in which things were produced at a certain point of history rather than by Faith in God or by religious idealism. Evidently, by religion Marx meant Christianity; perhaps he could not find time to study Islam.

Questions:

1. What is the function of opium?
2. What does Marx mean when he says that "religion is the opium of the people"?
3. What according to Marx, is the scientific view of the nature of man?
4. What does the writer suggest when he says "perhaps he could not find time to study Islam"?

Comprehension

COMPREHENSION EXERCISE 5

Q: Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

"Religion is the opium of the people" is an oft-quoted saying of Karl Marx. The function of opium as is well-known is sedative. It assuages pain, lessens irritation and intoxicates. Thus, what Marx apparently meant when he described religion as "opium" was that religion eased physical and mental sufferings of this life by promising greater prosperity and happiness in the next world. He claimed that religion helps in soothing the irritation which inevitably exists between the opposing classes: it teaches the poor the blessings of and ends the greatest support to the existing economic order with its cardinal feature, the exploitation of masses. In this view of history there can obviously be no place for a Transcendental Being. This was also supposed to be a scientific view of the nature of man. His social, political and even moral life was said to be governed by the manner in which things were produced at a certain point of history rather than by Faith in God or by religious idealism. Evidently, by religion Marx meant Christianity; perhaps he could not find time to study Islam.

Questions:

1. What is the function of opium?
2. What does Marx mean when he says that "religion is the opium of the people"?
3. What according to Marx, is the scientific view of the nature of man?
4. What does the writer suggest when he says "perhaps he could not find time to study Islam"?

Comprehension

Q No 1

What is the function of opium?

Ans

The functions of opium that are mentioned in the text are it reduces the enduring experience, and make a person intoxicated and more flexible.

Q No 2 What does Marx mean when he says that "religion is the opium of the people"?

Ans

"Religion is the opium of the people" by this, Marx means that both opium and religion have a resemblance functions. As opium reduces pain, in the same way, religion reduces the physical and mental pain of the people by the hope of prosperity and happiness in the next world. As opium ~~decreas~~ ^{decreases} a person ~~lessen~~ ^{lessen} irritation, in the same way, humans accept the exploiting economic system of the world. Therefore, both have the same functions.

Q No 3

What according to Marx, is the scientific view of the nature of man?

According to Marx, it is the scientific view of the nature of human that where he is born, he will follow that particular way of life because his social, political and moral life is governed by a certain point of history rather than by spiritual faith.

Q No 34 What does the writer suggest when he says "Perhaps he could not find time to study Islam?"

In this statement, ~~writer~~ the writer suggest that if Marx studied Islam, he would not generalise the criticism on Christianity to other religion.