What is the Islamic perspective on crime and punishment? Explain your answer with proper examples.

INTRODUCTION

Islam presents a code of life along with a series of worship that are fundamentally different from other worldly religions. While other religions are silent on worldly affairs relating to governance or justice, Islam presents a novel solution.

It lays emphasis on a society that is embedded with the values of justice, tolerance, peaceful co-existence and security. It aims to create a society in which every follower/citizen can fulfill his/her moral, spiritual, intellectual and material needs.

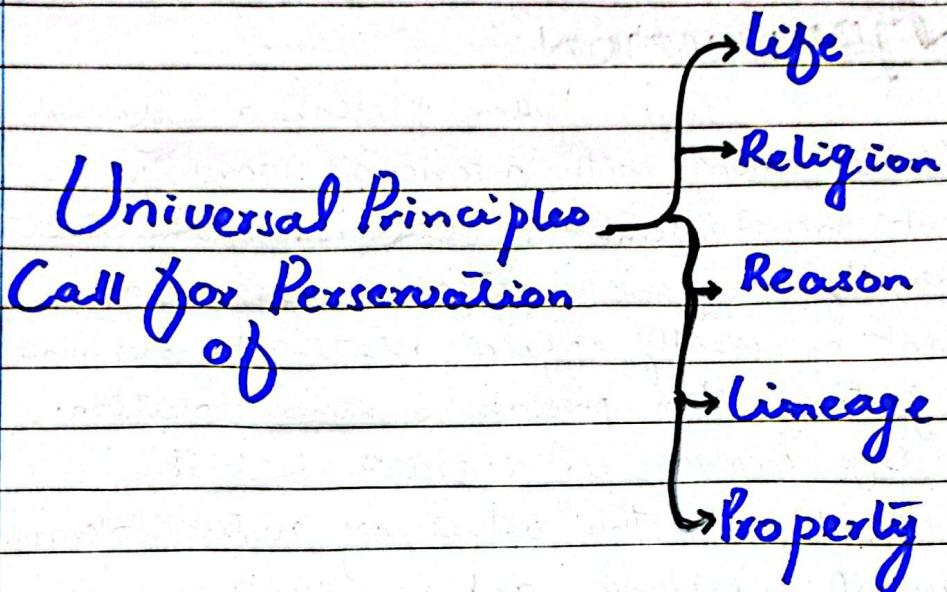

Islamic penal law is divine law as compared to the modern western normative/positivist law. Islam has set out specific prohibitions after which various punishments are handed out.

against the transgressions against life, religion and so on. They are meant to promote human welfare and preserve human dignity. The universal principles are as follows:

In this regard, the Almighty commands

"Indeed Allah commands Justice, Grace, as well as generosity to close relatives. He forbids indecency, wickedness, and aggression. He instructs you so perhaps you will be mindful."

(Quran)

Transgression against the universal principles shall constitute punishments / penalties. The goal of the Islamic system is to create an internal and external deterrent against crimes. It does

Conclusion

Islam's basic purpose is to ensure society is safe from crime. It aims to establish a reformatory system of justice with repentance as a way to faze an individual's criminal past. Lastly, it aims to create deterrence (general and specific) in society, the punishments are in line with the severity of the crime. By doing so, it wishes to create society where its members are safe and able to do their business without the fear of crime.
