

Cherokee and their traditions

The author wanted to spend their holidays at new place. They decided to visit Cherokee, Qualla Bann-day a town of Cherokee surrounded by beautiful scenery and had 18th Century living lifestyle. They visited to Souvenir shops which were filled with traditional arts. In the one shop they shocked to meet George, a shopkeeper who could speak fluent English. Bing weekend was the source of income in Cherokee people. Finally, they went to a museum where different kinds of artworks and symbols were displayed. On this return, the author missed Cherokee and looked forward to visit another unusual place.