

The Importance of Education in Pakistan

Development.

Nelson's Mandela, a great revolutionist and Nobel laureate says that "Education is most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world." Today, we are seeing the developed world because of education. All the great powers, witnessed two world wars in the early and mid twentieth century, but still these countries are in the position to control the rein of the globe. This is because of education. In the same way, the educational development in Pakistan is the guarantee of the progress. According to Plato's student and one of the great scientist, Aristotle, Education is attaining knowledge and happiness in ones life. He further elaborates that Education is the creation of sound minds in sound bodies. The happiness of all the countries of the world, including Pakistan, is associated with happiness of individuals. If the people of a state are happy and focused on the acquiring of education, soon it will attain a high status in the world. Today, the literacy rate of Pakistan, which is second worst in the South Asian region, is been responsible for the country's situation. If Pakistan become able to educate their youth according to the modern requirements and needs, the turmoil situations; Corruption and bribe; Sinking economy; Terrorism and Extremism; Foreign influence; and the issues of instability and leadership crisis would itself be sorted out and soon the country would be on the track of development.
