

PRECIS (2006)

Philosophy: An Eclipse of Wisdom.

In Greece, philosophers took ^{acquired} ~~more~~ ^{more} knowledge than imparting it to others. Old philosophers contemplated more on the mystery of knowledge, while pre-Socratic sought to extract knowledge via experiences. However, there have been flaws within the philosophies presented by different philosophers. Moreover, scholars replaced medieval discourses with disputes about external world's reality and corrupted young men. The philosophers did not inculcate any kind of wisdom in people. For philosophers like Plato and Aristotle, such approaches ~~were~~ ^{sound} pleasant for shorter periods, but they fail to attract wisdom within people. These approaches ~~sound~~ threatened the destiny of man. Therefore, Aristotle and Plato brought the light of wisdom to build human character and life.

Words: 114.