Precis:

Nizar Hassan, a Palestinian filmmaker ~~born in 1960~~, began his career in television before transitioning to cinema in 1990. His 1994 film Independence is a critique on Israel's use of the term to describe their occupation of Palestine land, highlighting the absurdity of such claims. In light of recent Israeli plans to further annex Palestinian territories, the author reflects on the profound impact of Hassan's latest documentary, My Grandfather's Path. This film serves as a powerful reminder of Palestine's beauty and struggle, offering solace and perspective in the face of ongoing oppression.

Do not hate your enemy to the extent that you become just like him.

A masterful and lengthy work of art, the film invites viewers on an uninterrupted pilgrimage through Palestinian history and heritage.
