

Precis 2004

2004

Importance Of Self Reflection

The world today has been under a shift where character still remains on second priority during social interactions.

sentence is too long

One needs to put character at first and then personality. In this case, one needs to reflect and know themselves first, which helps them win in the long run. Only an independent person can choose to be inter-dependent which will eventually help them in maintaining social relations. Today, people have the flexibility to sense others' fake attitude by their outer personality rather than their inner character. Here, one needs to be truly themselves and follow their heart. So, human beings should first strengthen relations with themselves. It is proved that only a self-aware person can maintain social relations and help build the society.

main idea is picked and discussed over all content is fine
word count is written in sentence form

word count

words in main passage

words in precis

rest is satisfactory 9/20

347

121