Precis- 2016

Last May, I sought an appealing, less crowded vacation destination and chose Cherokee county, Oklahoma, on suggestion of a friend. The trip to Qualla Boundary, a town depicting paradise-like view, provided a glimpse into Cherokee heritage with attractions like ~~Oconufee Indian Village~~ and the outdoor pageant ~~Unto These Hills~~. We met a local shopkeeper, named George, who shared insights about the tribe's life style, from seasonal tourism works to the popular Bingo Weekends, which ^{sustained} sustain them during off-peak periods. The tour ended with a visit to museum displaying Cherokee art and crafts, leaving me with astonishing memories of this unique experience.
