Amidst the crowded cities, the green spaces present a moment of peace. Parks provide a source of recreation, environment protection, social integration and cultural exhibitions. Additionally, nature nourishes the mental health.

But, keeping a balance between urbanization and preservation of greenery is a challenge. Sustainable urban planning, creation and maintenance of parks and other measures are crucial in this regard. Moreover, it is the responsibility of citizens to preserve nature.

The notion is to draw urban designs that integrate nature into the complexities of city life.
