energy crisis was due to lack Question - Pakistan of strategy & political will . Discuss? Introductions The energy crisis in Pakistan is multifaced issue rooted deeply in combination of structural, policy and political factors, along side other contributing factors like poor governance, corruption and ineffecient in energy management. The argument that to lack of strategy El crisis is due political will holds significant weight when we consider several 4 factors. heading first relate your headings to the Inconsistent atement ameworl major may contributors to Pakistan's energy lack of long term consistent energy policy. Over the decade the successive failed to implement strategy that addresses co hesive generation, transision and distribution effectively. Policy inconsistencies and frequent priorities have hindered sustainable development. For instance, energy · Shift in Focus: Different governments have pointize varying energ sources, such as hydropower, thermal or renewable energy, without maintaining a clear, long-term approach. This has led to of diversification in energy sources. Integrated Energy Plan (2005-2025) was never fully implemented, leading to gragmented energy strategy. · Delayed Projects:-Many projects, especially related to power generation and infrastructure have been delayed and no gramework has done due to lack of political leaderships and conflicts. A clear example of insonsistent policy can be seen in Kala Bagh Dam Project which has been debated for decades. While experts hydropower capacity (about 3600 MW) but political disagreement b/w provinces have blocked its unstruction

Political Will & Corruption: Political will 13 any long term project crucial for success of Unfortunally the energy sector has be plaqued by a lack of political commitment and widespread corruption. · Short-term gain over long-term Vision: Political leaders after prioritize short-term, politically notivated projects that generate immediate gains sather than investing in infrastantur that would have long-term benefits. For example rental power projects were introduced under emergency measures but led to scandals and financial losses. · Institutional corruption, These have nomerous instances of mismanagment and corruption in state-owned interprises NAPDA & K-Electric Political influence institutions has resulted in poor governance with funds being diverted projects abondored nidway.

Lack of investment in Renewable Energy:-Pakes tan has immense potential for renewable sources like wind 7 solar and hydropower. However country has not been able to fully exploit this potential due to lack of political will and strategic planning. Country has an estimated potential of 58,000 MW of wind energy (particularly in Sindh Coastal areas) & 2.9 million MW of solar energy, renewable energy accounts for energy renewable energy energy mix. But the Alternative Energy Development Board (AEDB) has consistency faced neglect and insufficient fonding. Circular Debt:has been marked by the issue of anglas debt, which occurs when power producers do not recieve payments from distribution companies leading to a firencial shortfall. This debt has accumulated to alarming levels due To inefficiencies, theft, and poor recovery mechanisms in the system

CamScanner CamScanner

As a 2023, incular debt has reached an alarming level of PKR 2.5 trillion. This means goverment ower massive amounts to power producers, and debt keeps pulling up because of systematic ineffeciencies and electricity theft. Ineffecient Energy use & Transmission Losses Pakis tan has one of the highest rates of transmission and distribution losses in the world around 19-20%. Poor infrastructure, outdated grid and electricity theat contribute to these losses which result in higher costs and prequent power outages. Successive governments failed to address this issue. According to NEPRA these Losses stood at 18.3% in 2022 Use marker for references Geopolitical & External Dependencies:-While enternal factors such as global energy prices and geopolitical dependencies on countries like Saudia for oil Qata LNG, do ply role in crisis

Pakistan imported 70% of its energy needs in the form of oils calland LNG which make it vulnerable to international price Huctuations. For instance Russia-Ukraine was caused sharp vise global LNG prices. Add more arguments. A 20 marks Conclusion: answer should have around 15 the energy cuisis in Pakistan is primarily the result of weak strategic planning coupled with a lack of political will to tackle deep rooted issues ris sector. A comprehensive long-ter strategy free from political influen corruption is crucial to resolving risis. This would require astrong institutional regorms, investment is rependedle energy and development sustainable financial model for ener distribution and production over coming these obstacles, Pakistan only resolve its energy crisis the way for economic growth. Improve the references, paper presentation and the headings quality part Scarned with restion Analyze the role of 18 Amendment in shaping the parlementary system of government in Pakistan. How has this affected fedarlism El governance? The 18th amendment to constitution of Pakistan possed on April, 2010, is a landmark reform that has profoundly shaped he country's parliamentary system, federalism, jovernance. The amendment aim to secure se sestore Pakistan's parlamentary democracy by undoing the distortions created by ilitary rilers and significantly decentralizing power to the provinces. Its impact on federalism and government is multifaceted and requires a careful analysis Key features of 18th Amendment:

D Restoration of parliamentary supremacy:amendment restores the balance of power b/w president and prime minister, shifting in line with a page to the latter

Article 58(2) 5 which gave the president, the power to dissolve the National Assembly was repeated This limited president ability to dissmiss elected goverments & to destabilizes democratic regimes 2 Devolution of power to provinces :-The concurrent legis bin list was abolished, transferring over 40 subjects from federal govt to provinces. This areas such as health, education, includes environment and local gover giving province greater autonomy in manging their affairs. The council of common Interests was empowered to ensure greater cordination setween federal & provincial governments. 3 Judicial Independence:the process of appointing judges was reported ensure greater independence of judiciary commission & a Parliamentary A judicis te were created to oversee judic appointments, reducing executive influence over the judiciary.

(4) Strengthening Provincial Autonomy:amendment shifted more fiscal powers to the provinces, allowing them to collect certain tanes and increasing their share. of revenue theorgh National Finance Comission (NFC) Award. Provinces were also given control over natural resources within their teritories an important demand of resource rich but marginalized area provinces like Balochistan El Sindh. Impact of 18th Amendment on the Parliamentary System: 1) Strengthening the role of PM:restoring executive powers to the prime Minister, the 18th amendment reinvigorated Pakistan's pakistan democracy. This cushed the presidentic previously broad powers & reinstated the primacy of the National Assembly, making printing of truly accountable to parliment. This remove the undue influence of presidency , a legacy of militar vule. @ Checks & Balances:-The am endment enhanced checks & balances within the government. With the president powers curtailed, Pakistan's governance became more parliamentary in and transparency The judicial commission & Parliamentary comitte on Judicial appointments act as mechanisms to prevent concentration of powers in executive, strengthening the rule of vaw. Impact on Federalism:-Devolution & provincial outonomy: · The 18th amendment marked a significant step Towards fiscal & administrative decentralization by transferring powers - to provinces that align with jederalism. By devolving subjects to provinces, the amendment fostered a sense of local ownership & responsibility over development & public services, enhancing provincial governance capacity.

Scanned with

2) Improved Intergovernmental relations: The companyent of Council of Common Interests (CCI) provided a platform for resolving disputes between federal & provincial governments. This has helped improved coordination & dialogue on national policies, especially in areas where both provincial Se federal interest overlap. Fiscal decentralization: The amendment shifted fiscal equation by providing more control over resourcest to poovinces which led to more equitable resources distribution. add more arguments in (3) Strengthening national unity:- part For sesource-rich but marginalized provinces like Balochistan & Sindh the 18th amendment's devolution of powers & resource was seen as a move toward addressing historical grievances. The amendment helped reduce centreprovince tensions that had fueled discontent and calls for greater autonomy. · Amendment is seen as a step tounid strengthening national unity by accomedating the diverse needs of Pakistan's multi ethnic socienty. This part is not asked. So no Challenges & Criticism: need to disc Capacity issues at Provincial Reinfordetail need to discuss While amendmen transferred substantial responsibilities to The provinces, many provinces have lacked the administrative se financial apacity to effectively manage these new powers. Health, education and local governance have seen mixed results, with some provinces struggling to implement reforms due to inadequate infrastructure, technical exportise and governance challenges. Tensions over resource allocation -The devolution_ of resources and fiscal powers has at times created tensions blu federal govt is provinces. NFC award farmula for revenue distribution has been a subject of debate particularly from provinces that feel thy contribute more than they recieve in return. Concerns of Centralization of Provincial Power:-While the Amendment devolve powers to the provinces critics argue that some provincial governments have been reluctant to for ther devolve powers to local governments, leading to centralization within provinces. This hindered local governments E exective delievery of services at grass root level. Federal Government Concerns:-Some factions in federal govt expressed concerns that 18 Amendment has weakened central government to the point that it stranggles to maintain coherent national policies. Conclusion :-The 18th Amendment has played a transformative role in shaping Pakistan's parliamentary system, restoring democratic institutions and empowering provinces through devolution. By reinstating the prime minister withouty & shifting stabilize Pakistan's political structure El deepen democratic norms. However amendment has also bought new challenges, particularly selated provincial governance autonomy, resource distribution maintaining national cohesion critical was sike health & education. Despite these s amendment represents erucial step word federalism and decentralization wer in Pakistan, aligning with country's diverse and nulti ethnic makeup. Moving orward, the successful inplementation of 18th Amentment will depend upon strengthening provincial capacities, resolving center province tension and ensuring that devolved power are exer effectively for benefit of entire papulation.

Scanned with

CamScanner CamScanner

