Problems Face by Human

During human progress men have faced problems from nature and other human being. Environment is the worst enemy. Man survival was very tough without fur, escaping from wild animals and he cannot live in harsh cold weather. However, he has got benefits from his posture and intellectual abilities. But nature still affects him by flood and famine and makes difficult to survive.

Now-a-days/Today, men learn to control natural calamities through scientific development. Hard work is essential but everything is obtain by wise decisions, peace and co-operation. Miseries the cause by man is different from former. There are wars, cruelty, avarice and in man affect others. But the power of love still dominate in society and fear is also part of it.
