

Ruling elite capture in pakistan

Pakistan is a country where there is capture of ruling elite, which are exploiting the population, misruling the country, and retire to the west where they do not face any consequence for their actions in Pakistan. Moreover, this ruling elite is evolving from stationary bandits, which exploits the population while providing some advantages to the public, to roving bandits which exploit the public while not accountable to anyone. Due to this ruling elite, who are not merely concerned for public and state but rather for their own interests and benefits, Pakistan is facing drastic consequences. These consequences include low human development, poverty, corruption, low economy, and human right violations. According to recent human development Index report 2024, Pakistan's HDI is 0.540 which ranked Pakistan at 135th country with the lowest human development Index. In account of these evidences, Pakistan's citizens are living a hard life for decades, they need a change.
