

The KP Assembly remains deeply divided over the proposed mining legislation. Similarly, The Balochistan Assembly passed the bill without any discussion or reading. The mining and mineral's bill was proposed by the federal Government, carried out by the SIFC. The civil-military SIFC is marketing Pakistan's potential ~~market~~ to ~~the~~ Foreign investors mineral.

Every initiative by the government has Pros & Cons. The mining legislation has its implications. Firstly, it would deprive the Provinces of their decision-making powers, transferring these to the centre. Secondly, it would curtail the provincial autonomy and create a rift between the center and the provinces. Moreover, the government estimated the worth of these minerals to be $6tr. It would help fix the national economy, freeing the country from dependency on IMF bailouts.

Avoid cutting.
