

Title: Human struggle against nature

men have been subject to two type of miseries: The one imposed by nature, and those they misguidedly inflicted on each other. In the beginning, worst evils were those of <sup>environment</sup> environment. man was rare species, who ~~would~~ survived with great difficulty. He had two biological advantages; standing straight and sharing his experience ahead. These advantages <sup>helped</sup> helped him and <sup>increase his</sup> increased ~~their~~ number compared to other large mammals; but he is still exposed to natural disasters. We are being secure due to scientific advancement. Natural disasters still occur, but we know how ~~to~~ survive. Now we need little struggle as compared to past. But the evils of men have not <sup>diminished</sup> diminished yet. Those with power still exploit weak and fear is still a dominant factor in many people lives.

Teacher's Affection Shapes Children's Mind's

Modern educational theorists tilt more towards the issue of not interfering with childrens than enjoying their company. Childrens would be more obedient if they are treated the way people people love their pets. Childrens would not go for that attention, in which they are expected something in return. Natural feelings towards childrens, are in their best interest. Teachers with such quality, do not affect the childrens psychologically. Unfortunately, over-worked teachers can not behave spontaneously. Education should not be anyone's whole profession. It should be undertaken daily for two hours, for people who spent the remaining time away from childrens. Society of the young goes to destruction in the absence of strict rules. childrens are not to be scared prematurely. No rules, are the alternative of affection.

A hungry lion slipped out of the forest into a barnyard one evening. He saw a plump donkey. His mouth began to water; but just as he was ready to jump on the donkey, a rooster crowed. He was frightened and so turned away into the forest again. Hey! "look at that cowardly lion." The donkey brayed to the rooster, "I am going to chase him," and the donkey ran after the lion. "Wait," the rooster shouted. "you don't know that..." but it was too late. The lion had turned and killed the donkey. Ah! "my poor stupid friend," the rooster said as he watched the lion eating the donkey. The lion wasn't afraid of you but of my crowing.
