Title: Happiness Conquers Envy.

The most painful characteristic a person can have is being 'envy'. The jealousy of what others have make a unrest even with all fortunate. Envy makes a person judgement of what perks and privileges others have. It makes a person blind and full of hatred. but the extraordinary quality resides in human heart is admiration that ~~dis~~assuages envy. Contentment can mitigate the effect of envy - but happiness is not the cure of this self destructing virtue. It is a realization of seeing things or ^{perspective towards} a way of life. Envy is a stone in way of happiness but human nature so adaptable and can find its way of tranquility and peace.
