

Date: _____

Problems in Human Development

Since human development men have been facing calamities. These caused by nature and other human beings on each others. Due to the worst environment, humans were rare species as they have no adaptability features for extreme conditions. Their unique biological structures made them supreme to all species. The natural disasters still occur which made difficult the survival of human beings. However, with scientific knowledge human learn to prevent from these conditions. But the effect men passing to others through various activities still persist. Thus, the love for authority leads human for devastation so the fear exists in people's lives.