

Precis

Title: A Trip to Cherokee

The author narrates; during his vacation he wanted to visit a magnificent place away from crowd. He and his friend made a trip to Cherokee and arrived in its village Qualla Boundary. It was surrounded by exotic mountains and was showcasing historical lifestyle and eye-catching artwork. Shops were filled with variety of items made of animals skin. They met a man who, having fluent English, chatted with them about his working experience. He told apart from trade, other mean of income for villagers is Bingo Weehenee, where a hall opens for people on to play various games. This in return gives much profit. Lastly, they visited a museum of village, displaying artwork made from skin of various animals. After returning, he really missed that place and hoped to visit similar place in future.

Word-count: 132