A Policy Pursued by a state in its future dealings with another state in order to acquire its own national interest is Foreign Policy. However, the debate for the acceptance of Israeli state is once again in corridors and both national and religious sentiments are being seen in the country. Careful consideration and steps need to be taken as every decision shall have both Advantages and disadvantages. In term of Advantages, it is considered that Pakistan could gain advance military equipments and acquire diplomatic support of Israel in international matters. more on this Pakistan could obtain economic assistance to enhance and stabilize its ailing economy. In Contrary, major disadvantages that Pakistan could face, are social and political backlash from political and religious extremist factions that would further create chaos in the country and destabilize the already disputed government. Therefore, as the country is already bearing the cost of war on terror in terms of socio-political challenges, so in terms of acceptance of Israel state, socio-political approach is more rational rather than military and technology advancement. Without changing the perception of masses and laying down rational thinking approach in masses, acceptance of Israel would be more the reason of chaos and instability in the country.

Major objectives of Pakistan's Foreign Policy toward Israel;

military objectives :

It is considered among majority masses that if Pakistan accept Israel as a state, it will create opportunity for Pakistan to acquire modern and advanced military equipments. However, Israel-India nexus already in the South Asia and both countries objectives to counter Pakistan and Iran in South Asia, do not pave the way for Pakistan to acquire military equipments. In recent clashes between India-Pakistan, Pulwama attack or Pahalgam incident, Israel was the major strategic and military supporter to India and analysts think that it would be in the future also. In the regard of modern military and advanced technology, Pakistan can acquire this objectives from other state as Pakistan is doing so primarily from China. China ^{technology} emerged as a most modern and technologically advanced aftermath of Pahalgam based skirmishes between India and Pakistan, so, to Conclude military objectives, Pakistan easily fulfil its military needs and by that means accepting Israel would not be a rational approach.

Economic objectives :

By accepting Israel, Pakistan could enhance its already ailing economy in form of Foreign direct investment, Economic aid and relief from west, Trade deals etc. But these are only considerations and perceptions that this could happen, in reality there is no guarantee that Israel would be beneficial for Pakistan as having major trade and business partners among the world. On the other hand, Pakistan's major economic development is CPEC and BRI Connectivity in the region, as Pakistan current deal with Iran and UAP Project. while joining Israel and western's economic factions, there is decline possible in these mentioned projects. Considering or prioritizing the perceptions instead of reality of these economic developments would not be a considerable approach among Economic analysts.

Social System :

As Pakistan's Society is mostly religious, Ideological and stand on Palestine Cause steadily, in these circumstances making a Anti Palestinian Policy have a potential to serious backlash and extremist protests across the country.
