Role Of Affection In Education

Modern educationist often ignoring children to enjoy their company. If they treated child with affection so it is possible they will consider their suggestion. But if they can not treated them with affection then no child will be interested in their effort. The desirable liking is enjoying their company without mentally disturbing them. Unfortunately it is not possible for teachers to affectionate children because of their work burden which leads them to fatigues later on then in irritation. which lose their instinctive liking for children. There is no specific rule as how to treated a child. If child feels you like him then every decision will be right. Effective Teaching require affection rather than rigid rules.
