

Translation

According to the layman the law and order of the country and independence of the person are linked together. Apparently this is not wrong. Every law imposes some restrictions on citizens. If ~~the~~^{the} number of laws in the country is high, the overall restrictions are also high. High restrictions stifle individual freedom. on the contrary if the number of laws is less the scope of freedom for citizens is expanded.