"Gender equality, is a myth or a reality?"

"Introduction"

With the passage of time, the countries have been working on human rights since long time. Every country had started promoting human rights. During that time, the leading women had raised their voices and demanding for equal rights.

Some Skeptics argue that women have the same rights like some companies are paying equal wages to women and giving same quota to women. However, those Skeptics are unaware of real figures and ground reality because women are not getting equal wages and they have limited seats in political. Women are facing work place harassment and gender based violence.

They are lagging behind in education sector and having unequal opportunities. Women are doing more unpaid work than men and still experiencing a worse mental health problems. This essay will mention how gender equality is a myth rather than a reality.

"Conclusion"

In conclusion, this essay concluded that the gender equality is a myth because those Skeptics were aware of real figures and ground reality.

The reason is that, women are getting unequal wages, having limited seats in politics, and facing workplace harassment. Women are also facing gender based violence, having unequal opportunities, and doing more unpaid work than men and still experiencing worse mental health issues. In simple words gender equality is a myth not a reality.
