Importance of bonding between teacher and student

Contemporary educationalists emphasize on adverse impact of not engaging with children rather than essentialness of being among their company. Pupils take no interest in any activity until they feel pleasure. Therefore, teacher who likes to be among children, without any contradictory aim, can provide them environment suitable for learning. It seems unworkable to have natural bonding between teacher and children when teacher is under work-burden and spends few hours with them. Conventional teaching methodologies are not effective as compared to spontaneous
