Soothsayers: Conduit of Divine Messages

what? Humanity realized inconsequentiality in the vastness of the universe birthed the need for communicating with the divine. For ancient Greeks, the messages from gods were "decoded" through ~~oracles~~, by soothsayers blessed with the gift of understanding gods' signs. These individuals relayed the message by interpretations of ~~lightening, thunder, migratory birds, fire, sacrificial animals, dreams and palms~~. Sometimes, the gods spoke directly to the intermediaries, who in a state of "divine mania" delivered the message to the people. The ~~oracles~~, based on these practices, were located in organized sanctuaries associated with the respective gods. For Greeks, the eminent soothsayer was Apollo, the god that carried Zeus' ~~message~~ ~~to mankind~~, with the oldest and most important ~~oracles being Dodona and Delphi respectively.~~

Every era brings ~~with it~~ <sup>along</sup> certain matters, which despite not being to the liking of anyone, are to be accepted regardless. Sometimes, perhaps to test us, nature presents us with things not only meaningless ~~things~~ but also unrelated to us, ~~but~~ yet they are to be made a part of life and carried with us. The same can be seen today. Every century brings new changes with it, which are entirely new compared to ~~ones~~ <sup>ones</sup> brought by previous centuries. The advancement of humanities arts and sciences has given much to humanity that can be considered the fruits of educational and societal endeavors. As nature gives us fruit, it also admonishes <sup>birds</sup> us about the proper disposal of the peels. If not ~~followed~~ heeded, the uncleanliness of the environment increases.

the same is happening even today
