PART-II

QUESTION: 02

Topic:

Ad Hominem Fallacy: Attack the person not issue.

Precis

The ad hominem fallacy, ~~has been~~ if you are unable to win an argument discredit the one advancing it, has been around for a long time.

A classic non-malicious example is <sup>When</sup> young Lincoln <sup>faced</sup> ~~against~~ an experienced lawyer in court. The case went against Lincoln during the hearing during the hearing but Lincoln's eyes shined when he saw his opponent take off his shirt and vest, and wearing a shirt, which buttoned up the back. Lincoln in front of jury <sup>pleaded</sup> that how can justice be on one's side who doesn't even know which side of shirt needs to be in front, and he won the case.

Consideration of President Eisenhower's health is the nomination and discredit of Roosevelt to malign one of his policy are some other examples.

Two little frogs were playing about, at the edge of a pool, when an ox came down to the water to drink and by accident trod on one of them and crushed the life out of him. When the old frog missed him, she asked his brother where he was. "He is dead, mother!" said the little frog, "an enormous big creature with four legs came to our pond this morning and trampled him down in the mud".

"Enormous! Was he as big as this?" said the frog puffing herself out to look as big as possible. "Oh, yes, much bigger," was the answer. The frog puffed herself out. "Still more? Was he as big as this?" said she. "Oh yes, yes, mother! much bigger", said the little frog. And yet again she puffed and puffed herself out till she was almost as round as a ball. "As big as..." she began but then she burst.

QUESTION: 07

Wish we could go play those games again like Gulli Danda (Tip-cat), Searching for treasure, Hopscotch and Hide and seek.
