

MODERN WARS ARE EXTENDING HATRED.

Outline

I: INTRODUCTION

II: MANIFESTATION of MODERN WARS as a TOOL of SPREADING HATE:

- ① Rise of rationalism and protectionism creates gaps in international relations.
- ② Emerging territorial disputes drive to bloc politics
- ③ Quest for strategic gains has led to negative competition
- ④ International trade wars weakening local economies
- ⑤ Resurgence of terrorism and extremism has threatened global community.
- ⑥ Cultural, religious and identity politics marginalizing liberal norms
- ⑦ Rapid growth in cyber warfare, propaganda and proxy wars leading isolationist and protective policies between the states.

III: REASONS BEHIND TODAY'S WARS

IN EXTENDING HATRED:

- ① Greed and lust for extracting limited resources
- ② 'One size fits all' lens policies in international politics
- ③ Maintaining strategic supremacy in the region
- ④ Unresolved territorial disputes between the states
- ⑤ Predisposed and biased role of international platforms
- ⑥ Cultural, racial and identity politics
- ⑦ Media and social media as modern tools of shaping public opinion and spreading propaganda.

IV: WAY FORWARD to MODERN CONFLICT-INDUCED DIVIDE:

- ① Increased cooperation and coordination between states in resolving the disputes
- ② Promoting international liberal laws to ensure equality among the countries
- ③ Encouraging cultural exchange programs and scholarships
- ④ Respecting sovereignty of other states and promoting peace.
- ⑤ Inclusion of small economies in global and international trade development programs

- ⑥ Fair and equal representation opportunities for undeveloped countries
- ⑦ Initiative for strong and immediate mediation of international forums to reduce mass destruction

V: CONCLUSION

Human beings are brutal, nasty and selfish by nature.
Hobbes

Human beings are brutal, nasty and selfish by nature, said by Thomas Hobbes. They have always been the culprits and have undermined human rights for their personal gains and interests. The consecutive and recurrent incidents of brutality ensure their ignorance for the heist of glory, property and fame. Similarly, in modern era has observed such insomity of humans in multifaceted forms. The coercion and violent force of humans can be evident from current wars of the world. They still assault, subjugate and restrict the freedom of others; this inhuman pattern of actions leads to hate against the oppressors and rights violators. Modern era has experienced and has been observing glaring consequences of extended enmity around the world. The hegemon and powerful states directly and indirectly intervene in the affairs of weak countries which in return retaliate with other forms of fight.

Escalation of modern wars can be manifested by observing rise in destruction, trade wars and hybrid warfare.

~~The~~ The expansion of this brutality which has led to antipathy in humans is due to ^{the} greed for more resources, territorial clashes and identity politics.

~~To be precised, human beings have subdued human supremacy by~~

To be precised, modern wars have driven to an expanded discontent between people due to the lust for resources and political polarization.

However, spread of hate can be alleviated by taking timely actions to reduce wars.