

Date: _____

Day: _____

Final Draft - III

Work: Repellent of Boredom

Placement of work as a happy or unhappy cause could be confusing question. Mostly, burden of work is annoying and painful. However, in writer's view, even for some people, burden of unnecessary boring work is better than doing nothing. So the nature of work exists according to the ability of workers of being annoying or enjoying. Frequently, work have to done by majority is not only interesting but also beneficial. Firstly, it provides productivity due to already decided work. Most of the people could not find pleasant things to perform when they are open to choose, and remain regretted for not choosing any other option. So the ability to utilize leisure wisely is the last product of civilization only limited people achieved this level. A

Additionally, act of selectionⁱⁿ itself is tiresome. Exception exists only for those people with extraordinary initiatives mutually agreed on what to do, may not find it unpleasant. Mostly idle people fall in boredom because of doing nothing.
They can find a passing fancy but after ages, these sensations would also lost. Therefore, wise people make themselves in struggling, and foremost, crucial element is work in this regard. Boredom of doing un-interesting work is less than that of doing nothing. Another benefit of work is it brings excitement of holidays to enjoy freedom by doing nothing that an idle can never feel.