

"One crowned hour of glorious life is worth an age without ^{a name}

OUTLINE:

1) Introduction:

Thesis Statement: It is often argued that one crowned hour of glorious life can both give a life full of purpose or an authority which can absolutely corrupt a person. However, a life with rightful authority, purpose and privilege is worthy than a common way of life. Such lives contribute to human philanthropy and leave a legacy for future.

2) What does one crowned hour of glorious life is worth an age without a name mean?

3) A life with rightful authority, purpose and privilege is worthy than a common way of life:

(3a) A life with rightful morals leave a legacy.

Sheikh Abdul Qadir Jelani

(3b) Intellectual souls ^{with purpose} contribute ^{a legacy.} of words in literature.

John Keats

(3c) Curious minds find a purpose to contribute to medicine.

Sir Alexander Fleming

(3d) Individuals dedicate lives to contribute to human welfare.

Abdul satlan Eidhi

(3e) The royals with rightful authority leave a legacy of leadership.

Nur Jehan wife of ^{emperor} T. Jehangir.

(3f) Individuals with ideas lead a life of Entrepreneurship.

Queen Cleopatra - legacy of perfumes

(3g) A life full of courage and bravery protects the state.

Captain Iqbal Sher Khan - 1965 War

(3h) Individuals outshine their talent to leave a legacy.

Nazia hassan - Pop culture in Sub-continent.

(3i) Individuals with purpose make contributions to sustainability and environment.

Greta Thunberg: Environment Activist.

(3j) Individuals with purpose and values stand with the right side of history.

Hazrat Hassan (R.A) - Karbala.

4) A life with authority, purpose and privilege is not worthy than a common way of life as it corrupts absolutely.

(4a) Absolute power in lives corrupts the individuals.

J J Rousseau - Absolute power's Philosophy.

(4b) Individuals ^{with} corrupt authority take a turn towards brutalities.

Adolf Hitler : WW2

(4c) A life full of privilege ~~gives~~ ^{creates} weak men.

Qadr-e-Ayaz - Colonel Muhammad Khan.

5. Conclusion:

Essay

As Tipu Sultan quoted years ago that the lion who lives for one day with beauty, courage and purpose is better than the life of a jackal who lives for hundred years without any purpose. The same concept is reflected in one crowned hour of glorious life is worth an age without a name. It favors and represents a life of quality rather than the quantity of years. It represents a life with rightful morals, values and characters which leave a legacy for future. Moreover, it shows the intellectuality and spirituality of words left by individuals which still serve purpose in the lives of people. In addition to that, it is argued that a life which compels a person to think and resolve the quandaries of his mind gives resolve mysteries which is better than living a life with no sense of reflection and thinking. The individuals who ~~sense~~ dedicate their lives to work for human welfare is better than an individual who does not contribute ^{his fair} share. The lives with purpose maintain leadership, contribute to Entrepreneurship and economies, ~~enhance~~ enhance the beauty of arts and protect their states. These lives with purpose is better than the lives ^{which} might be capable to contribute but live a common and an ordinary life. It is often argued that one ~~or~~ crowned hour of glorious life can both give ^{life} a full of purpose or an authority which can absolutely corrupt a person. However, a life with rightful authority, purpose and privilege is worthy than a common way of life. Such lives contribute to human philanthropy and leave a legacy for future.

To unlock and understand the concept within the phrase 'one crowned hour of glorious life is worth an age without a name', we must first understand that all humans, animals, living things and non-living things are created by God with a purpose. No creation of God is worthless in this world. Everyone is created to contribute their fair share to their lives and the lives of others. As Aristotle said that Man is a social animal. It means that it contributes to its environment and rely on others. Some humans live a very short span of life but they leave a legacy while there are humans who live comparatively a longer life with no aim or purpose. The statement shows that a ^{short} life lived with purpose is better than a longer life ~~lived~~ with no aim at all.

1:24

It is often argued that a life with correct morals, values and norms leave a legacy. A single moment ~~with~~ lived with principles inspire others to do the same. It can be proved with an example from the life of Sufi shiekh Abdul Qadir Jilani, He was only five years old when he accompanied a campaign. On their way towards their destination, some bandits looted their belongings. One of the bandit asked Telani that what he was carrying. He said the truth about the precious belongings upon which the bandits laughed. When they checked, it was true. This event inspired the bandit to give up on bad deeds as he got inspired by the honesty of a five year old kid. Hence, this proves that a life ^{lived} with rightful morals is better than a life lived with a deceiving ~~char~~ personality.

~~However, some people speak a lot of words but they~~

However, every creature is given a gift by God to speak and express themselves. Everyone speaks but there are only few who say wise words and capture the beauty of life in figurative words. Their words leave a legacy for future which still shines in the modern world. John Keats was such a young writer who died of tuberculosis at the tendering age of twenty six. But still he made significant contributions to literature by writing odes in poetry. Historians say that if he had lived a few more years, he would have proved himself as another Shakespeare in English literature. Hence, this shows that a short life crowned with meaningful words is worth an age without a name.

Moreover, curious minds with a righteous purpose ~~entire~~ made significant contributions to ~~med~~ the field of medicine. Such minds find a way through their will. Their contributions matter because they find the possibilities from the impossible ~~unresolved~~ matters. Sir Alexander Fleming discovered penicillin which saved the lives of millions of people during the deadly wars. It is still saving lives in the modern world. He belonged to a poor family and practiced in an underprivileged laboratory but still did not give up to find a probable solution for bacterial diseases. He lived a life with a purpose and left a legacy for humans which is better than the lives of those individuals who worked in privileged laboratories but never contributed to human welfare.

In addition to that, the individuals who dedicate their lives to contribute to human welfare is better than those individuals who ~~do not~~ can contribute their fair share but feel reluctant to contribute to human philanthropy. It is evident through the ~~life~~ example of Abdul Sattar Eidhi who lived a ~~crowned~~ life crowned with kindness and purpose. His foundation served 8 millions of lives and provided a better standard of life to those children ~~who could hardly afford~~ abandoned by their families. Hence, it proves that a life crowned with kindness and soft corner for others is better than a life lived with no sense of help for others.

Similarly, the individuals crowned with royalty and rightful authority leave a legacy of leadership. This life lived with rightful leadership is better than the royalty lived with corrupted power and self-conceit. It is evident with the historical example of Nur Jehan, wife of emperor Jehangir. She controlled the leadership and enhanced the beauty of arts through her Persian background. She introduced Khorasani elements to sub-continent and controlled the matters of Tehangir.

She introduced ^{Pension} culture, art and paintings to exquisitely refine the beauty of the palace. Hence, such examples show that a life
lived with purpose is better than an ordinary life of royalty lived with no sense of good leadership.

However, individuals with ideas lead and contribute to the field of Entrepreneurship.
Everyone lives in a society where people come across multiple problems but there are rare
individuals who find a way and propose an idea to find a better solution to the problem.
It is evident from the historical example of queen Cleopatra who introduced the business of perfumes. In the ancient times, people felt ~~reluctant~~ irritated because of bad smell and no proper hygiene. Cleopatra introduced perfumes by making them through her own proposed formula. The perfumes were exported from Egypt to other regions of the world. Hence, it is proved that individuals ^{who} ~~with~~ live a life crowned with ~~a~~ useful ideas is better than those who do not think to execute such ideas.

However, a life lived with ~~full of~~ courage and bravery is better than the life lived with fear. A life full of courage and bravery finds a way to protect the ~~in~~ lives of people around it. It is evident through the example of Captain Kernal Sher Khan, who fought ~~with~~ ~~bravery~~ the ~~at~~ Indo-Pak war of 1965. ~~with~~ bravery. Such lives full of courage leave a legacy and become a living example for the nation. Such lives inspire others to do the same and protect their state. It inculcates a sense of patriotism in humans. Hence, it is proved that a life crowned with courage and bravery is better than a life lived with fear.

Moreover, there are individuals who outshine and recognize their talent. Their talent mark a legacy and becomes the pride of the nation. It is evident through the example of Nazia Hassan who introduced pop-culture to subcontinent. That pop-culture is still evident trending in the modern society. Nazia Hassan lived a shorter life but left a legacy through her talent. Even in the conservative society of 1990s, she feared none and outshined her talent. Hence, it is evident from the life of Nazis Hanson that a life crowned with talent is better than the life lived with no expression of talent at all.

However; Individuals whose life is crowned with purpose make contributions to sustainable developments within the environment. They protect and care for mother nature. Every human lives on this planet earth but very few make their contributions to protect their natural home. It is evident from the example of Swedish activist Greta Thunberg. She is a very young activist who found a purpose for her life. She could enjoy and get busy, live a life like other teenagers and adults but she chose to find a purpose for her life.

Hence, it proves that a life crowned with purpose is better than a life lived with no
purpose at all.

In addition to that, individuals
who live a life of patience, morals and values is better than the life of those individuals who feel ungrateful all the time.
Such individuals give an unbiased ~~or~~ view of history and choose to remain at the right side of history.
It is evident from the example of Hazrat Hassan R.A. who chose to avoid the wrong side of politics and lived a life of trustworthiness. Even it led him to ^{Cost}, his life during Karbala but he remained at the right side of history. Hence, it is evident that the individuals who live

a life crowned with values and patience stand with the right side of history. That crowned life of patience is better than the lives of those individuals who live a life of treachery.

However, a life with authority, purpose and privilege is not worthy than a common way of life as powers and privileges corrupt sometimes corrupt individuals. Every human make trivial and significant contributions in their lives. Majority of the people live a common life and not everyone can afford to live a crowned life. It is said by French philosopher JJ Rousseau that absolute power corrupts absolutely. There are at times where the life crowned with power is not better than an ordinary life. Sometimes, it is better to live an ordinary life rather than to live a life crowned with corrupted power.

Similarly, individuals with corrupt authority take a turn towards brutalities by misusing their power. Such individuals live a life which make it harder for other ^{humans} to live their life peacefully. It is evident with the example of Adolf Hitler who is known for his war crimes against the Jews. He killed sixty millions Jews. ~~which~~ ^{He is marginalized} ~~suffered~~ a significant portion of Jewish people. Hence, it is evident through the example of Hitler that a crowned life lived with corrupted power is not better than a common life lived with no bad intentions for other humans.

Similarly, a life full of privilege creates weak men. It is often said that hard times create stronger men while ~~weak~~^{easy} times create weaker men. It is evident through the example of the famous anecdote of Qadr-e-Ayaz written by Colonel Muhammed Khan in which his son complains about the performance of the worker to his father who is an army official. Later, he gets to know that his father lived a harsh life to ~~give~~ make life comfortable for his son. But despite all the comforts the son complains. Hence, it is evident that a life crowned with comfort is not better than the life lived with hardships.

In order to conclude the above arguments, it is evident that a life ~~was~~ crowned with a rightful authority to lead is better

than a life lived with no
sense of rightful authority.

It also highlights the purpose of life crowned with the aim to help people and contribute to their welfare.

A life lived with privilege and articulating that privilege to the rightful purpose is better than a life lived with no sense of achievement despite the privilege. Such lives ~~contribute~~ ~~crowned~~ with contribute to leadership, entrepreneurship, art and literature and reflect a sense of bravery and courage. Such lives ~~live~~ lived with purpose and contribution is better than the ordinary lives with no sense of purpose, achievements and

⑥

Contributions. Such lives leave a legacy for the future and contribute to human philanthropy.
Hence, it is concluded that one crowned hour of glorious life is worth an age without a name.

6:09