

Translation 2016

According to ordinary people, individual freedom and laws of a country are at odd with each other. In fact, it is not false. Every law imposes some form of constraints on individual freedom. If the laws in a country are numerous, then collective restraints are also vast. Due to a large number of laws, individual freedom is crushed under the weight of these laws. On the contrary, if laws are less in number, then the sphere of freedom of individuals is vast.

The education system of any nation is in accordance with the temperament of its people which develops and fulfills national and collective ambitions. The nation continues to struggle for the desired ambitions. Therefore, education system of a nation is a comprehensive system which aids in developing mental capabilities and ethos and actions of the people.

Education system trains individual in such a way that they turn destiny of the nation.